

South African folk stories are scheduled

South African folk tales will be enacted by Estelle Condra at the Conference for Early Childhood Development at 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 13, at Woodmont Baptist Church.

Wearing costumes of the African region, Condra will teach songs, rhythms, chants, and movements that heighten children's (adults' too!) understanding of other cultural backgrounds and ethnic customs. The actress, who grew up in South Africa, was professionally trained as an actress in London.

The remainder of the two-day conference will focus on workshops dealing with multi-cultural aspects and handicapped awareness in the field of early childhood development.

Condra's program will take place in the church's fellowship hall, 2100 Woodmont Blvd. Her performance is free and open to the public. For information call Jackie Duncall, 297-3182. ■

Wearing the traditional storyteller's necklace and African dress, Nashville actress Estelle Condra holds a tribal drum as she tells folk tales from South Africa.
